Releasing Grape Containers through Customs

Many containers of Grapes are held up on ports and customs due to timely availability of documents. Phytosanitary certificates for containers arriving into US are also needed for re-export.

A major grape packager was losing sales and delaying shipments due to missing documents. By using VeriSupply, the packager was able to cut down the delays and make documents immediately available to customs, brokers and customers.

Managing Food safety Inspections for Leafy greens

Leafy Greens Suppliers such as Spinach, Celery Suppliers have come under increasing pressure to monitor the safety of their produce due to media highlighting of contamination risk.

VeriSupply.com is used by a leading test lab in conjunction with growers to manage the required site inspections and test results. A single repository of documents has increasing agency's confidence in the packager's ability to respond to any future contamination events.
